

Please make all efforts to allow smaller, less well funded news outlets to reach the public. I live in a college town, and I can hear many alternative viewpoints on the college stations from Harvar, MIT, Tufts, and others. The more mainstream the news, the more it refers to personalities, not issues; dramatic anecdote, not background or history, and surface details.

I learned almost nothing of Eastern or non-Christian history when I was in high school and this, in part, fuels the U.S. ignorance of other cultures. I rely on international news and smaller eye-witness news to fill in those gaps. Rupert Murdoch and his fellow moguls put money over depth and I do not want more outlets to be in the hands of the already powerful.

Thank you.

Sincerley,
Joshua Whitley
Denver, CO